

ABSTRACT

This invention related to an improved process for preparation of cumene. More particularly, the present invention relates to a process for the preparation of cumene using catalytic membrane reactors. The membrane used in the process facilitates reaction in a forward direction such that byproduct formation is reduced or eliminated.

10

15

20

25

30